DETAILED ACTION

This office action is in reply to an amendment filed on August 12, 2010. Claims 1, 3-6, 8-10, 20, 22-25, 27-29 and 39-42 are pending.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments, with respect to 35 USC 103(a) rejections of claims 1, 2-6, 8-10, 20, 22-25, 27-29 and 39-42 have been fully considered and are persuasive. The rejection of these claims under 35 USC 103(a) has been withdrawn.

Applicant's arguments with respect to 35 USC 101 rejections of claims 39-42 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicant argues that, claims 39 and 40 are directed to an apparatus and the claim is not required to explicitly recite hardware to constitute statutory subject matter. Applicant further argues that, claim 41 recites 'computer/machine readable medium' that is not directed to a signal. Examiner disagrees.

Examiner would point out that, the apparatus of claim 39 comprises a sequence generator, a scrambler. Such claimed apparatus may be interpreted either as software, hardware or combination thereof necessarily includes hardware, is interpreted in its broadest reasonable sense as software/code/instruction [in accordance with application's specification paragraph 1055]. Furthermore, claims 41 and 42 recite the limitation on a computer-readable medium storing instructions, which is not only limited to medium of a statutory type, is held nonstatutory. The claimed "computer/machine readable medium" must be physical structure, not a signal.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

Claims 39-42 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter. Claim 39 recites, “An apparatus for scrambling information bits in a communications system, the apparatus comprising: a sequence generator for...; a scrambler for”. The apparatus of claim 39 comprises a sequence generator, a scrambler. Such claimed apparatus may be interpreted either as software, hardware or combination thereof necessarily includes hardware, is interpreted in its broadest reasonable sense as software/code/instruction [in accordance with application’s specification paragraph 1055]. When software system/apparatus is claimed without including a machine or a physical part of the device within the meaning of 35 USC § 101, it is considered non-statutory. Explicit presentation of a hardware component/element, which falls within the statutory category of 35 USC § 101, in combination with the claimed apparatus would overcome the rejection.

Claim 40 recites, “An apparatus of unscrambling information bits in a communications system, the apparatus comprising: a sequence generator for....; an unscrambler for”. The apparatus of claim 39 comprises a sequence generator, an unscrambler. Such claimed apparatus may be interpreted either as software, hardware or combination thereof necessarily includes hardware, is interpreted in its broadest reasonable sense as software/code/instruction [in accordance with application’s specification paragraph 1055]. When software system/apparatus is claimed without including a machine or a physical part of the device within the meaning of 35 USC § 101, it is considered non-statutory. Explicit presentation of a hardware component/element, which falls within the statutory category of 35 USC § 101, in combination with the claimed apparatus would overcome the rejection.

Claim 41 recites, "A computer program product, comprising: a computer-readable medium comprising code executable on at least one computer to cause the at least one computer to:....". Claim 41 recites the limitation on a computer-readable medium storing instructions, which is not only limited to medium of a statutory type, is held nonstatutory [specification, paragraph 1057]. The claimed "computer/machine readable medium" must be physical structure, not a signal. In addition, transitory forms of signal transmission through transmission medium such as radio broadcast, electrical signals through a wire, and light pulses through a fiber-optic cable, are embodiments that are not directed to statutory subject matter because those transmissions convey only information encoded in the manner are transitory (In re Nuijten 84 U.S.P.Q.2d 1495). On the other hand, claim limitation that specifically recites the medium as non-transitory and statutory type while still according to the specification would overcome the deficiency.

Claim 42 have limitations that are similar to those of claim 41, thus they are rejected with the same rationale applied against claim 41 above.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 1, 3-6, 8-10, 20, 22-25 and 27-29 are allowed.
